“ Jim and Iva Mae visited our house in up-state New York in September of 2005 and we toured many local sites, including Olana, where this photo was taken. They took the train out from Iowa and it was a long trip. When we dropped them off at the train station for their return trip, Jim sat down in the waiting room next to a Hasidic Jew and they started an animated conversation. It is one of my favorite memories of Jim: The image of him sitting in the Albany train station waiting room in his farm overalls chatting like long lost friends with a stranger in Hasidic attire.
