“ *Louise,
So sorry to hear about John's death. I have not seen you since 1958 and think you may have introduced me to John before you married. So, I can't comment on the man other than to say that if you married him he must have been a good person. Those of us who have not experienced the loss of a loved spouse cannot really understand what you are going through. My thoughts are with you.

“ Louise & family, We are so sorry to learn of John's death. It seems we go back a long ways. He had a quick wit, that I particularly appreciated. I remember one time at a class reunion and we were on the dance floor and he said to me, "Barb, you are the prettiest woman on the dance floor!" I said, "John, I am the ONLY woman on the dance floor".

I hope that some of the words of remembrance can help ease the pain of your loss.

“ Dear Louise,
Experiencing the death of a husband is do personal that very few of us can understand the grief involved. Perhaps it will help to ease you sadness if you know that John will be greatly missed by all of us here at the Stokes house, and that we all share in your sadness. John was one of the most charming and with such a quick sense of humor I have ever know. We will never forget him.

Our love is with you
