Yes Indeed!! I hope that you and Dustin can understand, I feel and believe in my heart that Paul is aware, and he is watching now. I know this is true; I knew the very moment he passed over, because I could feel it. Nobody had to even call me that morning, I just knew. When we were young boys, after our Father died, we were Baptized together, at the Lutheran Church in Albia. I still remember, I was at age 6 or 7, thinking that without a dad now, I had to watch over my little brothers... for a long long time I felt that way. In some ways I never stopped feeling that way.

Now it's Paul's time to watch over... all those who he ever loved and cared about in his life, he is watching over. He is with the Lord and others who loved him dearly. He's unburdened now, his soul-his spirit, up in Heaven. Paul is free now, and he is watching. Proudly watching.

Hi Chester, we've never met but I'm Paul's older brother & I live in Muscatine. You certainly do have much in common! It truly is a small world out there. Paul loved living in Muscatine the years he did. I loved it too. We were together a lot back then. He worked 2 jobs here, as well as helping me out.
